NO WAR WITH JAPAN SAYS "FIGHTING BOB"

Rear Admiral Says Such a Result would Be Crime and Shame.

TREATIES MUST RULE

Hostile Property Laws Would React on American Missionaries.

FLEET'S GREAT CRUISE

Officer Who Lectures To-Night Praises Navy but Deplores Publicity.

"There will be no war between the United States and Japan in my judgment," said Rear Admiral Robley D. Evans (Fighting Bob) when he said it in a tone that implied that he had not the slightest doubt as to the soundness of his judgment. Then he gave the reasons for the belief that the peace that has existed between the two countries for years is to continue indefinitely.

"We have no reason to fight with Japan. It would be almost as reasonable for China to decide to go to war with Germany because Germany had broken the window of a Chinese laundry in Berlin. We do not wood to pick a row with the Japanese, and they do not want to have us, are the reasons why there will be no war between us and Japan. It would be a crime and a crime for America to commence such a war. This country, at the time Admiral Perry visited Japan, thought that into the colony of nations, and at the present time the United States is the leading banner. We have always been on the friendliest terms, and we continue to be. I, personally, have a very high opinion of the Japanese people. I was among the guests, abeaoard and ashore, of the women and children of Japan, and I tell you that the children are lovely.

"In the controversy that has arisen between California and the Japanese it is difficult to determine which is in the right course. I believe that the people of the West are grateful to Roosevelt for the affair, but we all must realize that any law passed by a state is subordinate to the nation's treaties with foreign powers. If laws aimed at the Japanese are passed they will be forced them to hold property only for three years, which would forbid our missionaries to own property. Japan has treaties with Russia, Germany, the Netherlands and other countries that would be forced into war, but, take it from me, there will be no war with Japan."

Fleet's Wonderful Cruise.

Admiral Evans closed at the Jefferson Hotel last night his lecture on the fleet. He commenced by saying that the cruise of the battleship fleet he was two weeks to be called, but he changed his mind when newspaper reporters for two hours he

MAID OF ORLEANS IS WON BY TAFT

Crescent City Democracy Converted Into Stampeded for President Elect.

PLEDGE TO THE SOUTH

Administration to Be for Whole People—Oratory at Creole Banquet.

FUTURE OF THE NEGRO

North Must Stand Aside in Settlement of Problem —Leaves To-day.

No Graft in Canal, Declaration of Taft.

With a full understanding of the weight of the words I use, I wish to say, and challenge any evidence to the contrary, that the money which has been expended on that canal, every dollar and every cent of it, has been expended in the interest of the government, and not one dollar has been traced to graft in any way.

To change the type of canal now would be to disharmonize the splendid corps of workers on the isthmus, delay the glorious results—From Taft's speech at banquet.

NEW ORLEANS, La., February 13.—President-elect William H. Taft sensation was the hearts of the media of New Orleans last night, for all the Crescent City has also conveyed a Democratic sensation that was stupendous. The sensation was voiced to night by Creoliat Julius Gilbert, who spoke with the interest given in honor of the president elect, and with the eloquence of Jaeger Taft, the speech of Cardinal Gibbons was the feature of the occasion. The subject was dealt to Judge Taft and his statement that the Democrat Party in the South will be the political representative of the white certain drastic applause, and was followed by a demonstration which lasted for a quarter of an hour. Taft replied in the spirit of the occasion. He talked of the South as the chief executive to represent the whole people, and he promised to make the representatives of the administration in the South feel that the best interest of the communities in which they lived; of interest to the South, the Negro, of Tracers, was a repetition of its hope for the continuance of the Union, and of a Alabamian fraternity.

Creole Banquet at Night.

The sensation Creole Tonight was a creole banquet, given in the Rabinnel opera, the appearance of the culture, with the sensation of the Creole problem, and the sensation of the banquet, would be of compliment and praise of the Southern Democrat, and the Southern Democrat and vivacity tempered with respect and dignity.

The dinner was given in the newly decorated banquet hall of the Rabinnel Hotel, where Mr. Taft is quartered. A thousand citizens paid the assessment of $10 each for places at the board, and considerably over half that number were present, and from the early beginning until the last ending the cause was out and full house and exhilration.

Governor Sanders, city attorney, and a committee for Creole Tonight, in a unusual created an unprecedent situation for Mr. Taft, and the sensation of the occasion speech, gentlemen Lincoln in support of the Republican ticket, and the said which from could never be socially equal. Mr. Taft was seated between the speech and the presidential face, and took no notice of the sensation, when the latter turned toward him and enlarged the cause. It was a sensation of the Creole Tonight, cause the introduction of the negro question in the Southern.

Conference on Cabinet.

Although conferences during the day were had between Mr. Taft and Mr. Hitchcock, Secretary Shaw, and Treasurer Upham of the National Committee, the sensation of the occasion was getting the undecided places in the cabinet.

Mr. Hitchcock furnished certain information to Mr. Taft, and the Southern side of the president elect to retain from the Southern side. Mr. Taft said that his views solid-defined principles regarding the negro, and that he was for the settlement of the race question. He said that the negro should be given all the whole country, the greatest of every kind, and that he was for the negro and sympathy with the black man for people.

This speech was delivered to an audience of about 1000 people, and a portion of the grounds of the local bank-shall the negro be the sensation of the occasion marked approval.

Plans Speed at Country Club.

The afternoon of the city's distinguished guest was spent at the Country Club, which not only afforded the opportunity for a select luncheon party, but which Mrs. Taft was also a participant, but an opportunity for the guests will doubtless to the last game of golf Mr. Taft will indulge in the sensation.

The telegraphic correspondence between Mr. Taft and Secretary Root, which has been in-by, is regarded as making it clear that the Administration will not remove any conflictional embarrassment to the Southern Democrat, and the politics the Democrat-Republican is sensation.

Mr. and Mrs. Taft will leave here for Cincinnati at 9:30 o'clock to-morrow morning, arriving in the latter city at 10:45 Sunday.

Monday afternoon the president elect will start for Washington.

Only Hope for Negro.

"The South must solve the race problem—the negro must work out his own future, and the North, which knows little about the question, must stand aside—was the keynote of the address which the president elect delivered to the throngs at

FIREPROOF STEEL CARS

MODEL MADE OF NEW PAY-AS-YOU-ENTER FOR UNITED RAILWAYS.

SMOKING BARRED IN FRONT.

Steel Walls Allow More Room on Seats, and Doors and Exits Will Be Widened.

The United Railways Company has completed a sample of the new pay-as-you-enter car which it will put into service according to President Robert McCulloch, and it is said that the new cars will be put into service on the lines belonging to St. Louis, under the personal supervision of Capt. McCulloch, and it is said by the embodiment of all the experience of the company in the matter.

The body of the car is fireproof from the window sill down; above that it is just the same as the one now in use, or of the same wood and design, with the old wood sides, with their uncertainty before work, but the sides of the car, side of the car, be substituted a fireproof steel wall. The car is 50 feet long, and the length which of the car, but the distribution of the double wall gives between 3 and 4 inches additional width to the seats on each side. The width of the aisle remains the same. The door of the car is of a pattern designed exclusively.

The front platform embodies the newest improvements, with the vestibule constructed by about 3 feet, thereby allowing room for a lunchbox and for three persons on the left-hand side of the motorman. The motorman is placed to the right side of the platform, inclosed in a glass vestibule, and the door is also inclosed. The door is not at all, with the aisle remains the same. Capt. McCulloch said that there had been no many complaints from patrons that he had made a mistake in placing the front platform, so he had decided to put the platform on the rear, so that the conductor, in his opinion, on the rear car, when the weather permits the window to be open.

In regard to the payment of the 5-cent fare in the car, Capt. McCulloch has nothing to say except that the matter was explained by the head of their attorney, M. S. Priest. He said:

"We have had many persons who believe the United Railways has refused to pay any fares at all. As a matter of fact, it is the largest individual taxpayer in St. Louis. We pay over $200,000 annually. The system will be improved just as fast as our income—which is nearly from the abolish to convert—allows.

LIBERIA TOTTERS ON LINCOLN DAY

Negro Republic Nears End, Unless America Shall Intervene.

BRITAIN TAKING CHARGE

Sends Gunboat and Army to Maintain Order After Blacks Fail.

Special Cable to the Globe-Democrat.

WASHINGTON, February 13.—Civilization in Liberia have become very grave, and there is doubt among officials of the State Department whether the present government will be able to maintain itself. The department has been notified by cable that the British gunboat Sphinx, with three hundred British marines, has left Sierra Leone for Monrovia. A crisis in the affairs of the negro republic has unmasked, it is declared, and it is regarded as doubtful that Liberia will continue much longer under an independent government.

The winter Great Britain served notice upon the little republic that it would be able to maintain better order on the border of Sierra Leone, a British colony. A commission, consisting of several high officials of the Liberian Government came to Washington to appeal to Secretary of State Root for assistance.

Little Chance to Improve.

"The civilized part of the population has been in a great degree cut off from any business relations with the rest of the civilized world for two-thirds of a century. They begun with but little education, with no contact with the civilized world, and they have had but little opportunity to improve through intercourse with other and more advanced communities. They find it especially difficult to control the native tribes or to conduct their own government, and they have only modern contact with the outside world. The Government of Sierra Leone to the north and the French possessions to the east are almost continuously complaining of the refusal of Liberia to maintain order upon the border. Meanwhile, the very strong opposition on the part of Great Britain and France, which is increasing in force in the public, unless it receives reliable assurances, will not, it is to be feared, long delay.

"The fact that Liberia is a creation of the United States and that two prominent citizens of this country, Bishop Walters and Upham, officially expressed the good wishes of this country for the success of Liberia and different conditions another which it has been so long struggling has led to the opinion by Mr. Root, Senator Bacon and others interested in the humanitarian aspect that the inhabitants taught at least to have enough from state developed in civilization before being exposed to the rude shock of contact upon their race the opprobrium of being unfit to govern themselves.

AUCTION OF WHITES ON LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY PRESENTS PITIFUL SCENE.

A REMINDER OF SLAVE DAYS.

Minister Gives Object Lesson of Difficulties of Unemployed Workingmen Securing Positions.

NEW YORK, February 12.—An auction block was set up in Lincoln's birthday the spectacle that drew thousands of persons to the Particular Presbyterian Church in Thirteenth to-night. The auction was, in reality, an object lesson of the difficulties prevailing among working people and served to get jobs for a number of men. The church was unable to hold the crowd when Rev. John E. Lord began of auction, in which he outlined the pitiable condition of a man who was in the market to sell, but unable to secure a position. Mr. Lord, Rockefeller, the auctioneer, was not present.

The auction was conducted Edward V. O'Connor, who was in conjunct the auction, O'Connor outlined the plan, in which the men he would present had agreed. This was to offer them, as in the case of slaves, to the highest bidder, would give them a job. Through which they could earn substance and a livelihood, he said.

Mr. O'Connor then led on to the platform fifty men, young and old, all more or less shabbily garbed and displaying in their wage the pinch of want. All of the men were trick ability, so as to convince their stability.

Each man was numbered, and on they went put on block. Number 1, Number 2, Number 3, Number 4. He was described as one, the man had been out of work, the man went as far as to feet of the man's home and wants. He was described, announced that the man had been "sold" to W. P. Pastenak, who would give employment in an industrial association in New York. The man was sold and scattered.

No. 20, a painter, went to a Newark, N. J., man who promised him that he would work for $3 a day, and he was taken away by a young man who said he would take him to a home and work at once.

Many men in all were disposed of, when, as the hour was getting late, the spectators, many of whom keenly felt the pinch, were encouraged to offer themselves into a competition, took charge of the auctioneer and the men, who had tired to find homes and jobs for them.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, at Lincoln Farm—He grew to know greatness, but never more, never come to him, but never happiness. There have been other men as great and other men as good, but in all history of mankind there are no two great men as good as Washington and Lincoln, no other two men so great. No more practical man ever lived than this backwoods idealist.

AMBASSADOR BRYCE, at Springfield—His fame has risen till he has only become one of the grandest figures America has given to history, a glory to the American Republic. Truthfulness and conscientiousness ruled his life. He felt and owned his responsibility, not only to the people but to a higher power. He was born to shelter a refuge.

It is well to remember that one of the greatest treasures a nation can possess is the memory of its great men. Gushes of common sense and homely wisdom, of a man who was born in a log cabin, but who made a great statesman, but also a great politician.

AMBASSADOR TAKAHIRA OF JAPAN, at Peoria—A feature of Lincoln's life that Japan can be his diplomacy. Diplomacy that upheld the mother's dignity under adverse circumstances. American people are deeply endeared to our and we want to reciprocate what has been done for us. We have never had any idea of displacing your people, much less of nagging your people. The Japanese emigration agreement has been reached by which immigration is being reduced.

Special Dispatch to the Globe-Democrat.

HODGENVILLE, KY., February 13.—Thousands stood with reverent and uncovered heads on the little farm on which Abraham Lincoln first saw the light of day, and on this very spot within a few years will be built a beautiful memorial of Italian marble, which shall be a permanent monument to the memory of the great man who was born in a log cabin and who shall live in the memory of his people in the future.

Not within the memory of living man has the celebration, which attended the laying of the corner stone of the memorial hall, been equaled, attended as it was, by President Roosevelt, Governor Willson of Kangaville R. Wilson, governor of Kentucky, Ambassador Bryce, Ambassador Takahira, Senator Lodge, Senator Wilson and Gen. Luke E. Wright, of the Philippines in the country in which Lincoln conquered, and Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, and Senator Dolliver. All of these and thousands of other prominent men from the cities of Louisville, and three miles distant, had to do so by passage to the great war president of this country, and it is doubtful if there is a more or more ceremonious who is not straight proud of the fact that he was present at the occasion.

Mr. Taft says he hopes the Panama Canal will be completed within the next four years. That would be a fine administrative monument.

A New York lawyer died when he found that he had fallen heir to $15,000,000. He was evidently not cut out for big emergencies.

One reason why so much is written about Lincoln is that his life and example fit into American progress and destiny every day in the year.

Mr. Harden-Dumont is spending the winter at Monte Carlo. This little period of recreation may result directly to the science of aeronautics.

The Farm Uplift Commission worked without encouragement. It would be hard to best such disinterestedness in the present price of eggs.

The constitution of the United States is such a triumph in condensation that those most learned in it occasionally meet with a surprise on consulting the original document.

Lincoln's Birthday.

End of the Japanese Issue.

President Roosevelt says he is pleased at the effect of the anti-Japanese messages in the California Legislature. He ought to be gratified. In the face of things the Legislature did everything that he asked, and yet everything Roosevelt has congratulations which he sent to Gov. Gillett, Speaker Stevenot and their friends among the lawmakers at Sacramento were sincere. All alike want the Japanese to be kept out of California. Not only have all the obnoxious bills in the California Legislature either been defeated outright or shelved for the session, but the objectionable resolutions introduced in the Legislature of the other states on the Pacific Coast have been eliminated. Oregon's Japanese ballots, who sprang into the breach in all other directions in the other states on the stage, have been silenced. Probably the ridicule of the rest of the country deserves some of the credit for the defeat of the Northwestern orators. The Idaho bills were also dead, at least for the time. California's Legislature, at the suggestion of Gov. Gillett, has voted an appropriation of $10,000 to pay the expenses of a commission to ascertain the number of Japanese in California, and on the governor, the president, is mentioned as the right of the immigration agents of the Department of Commerce and Labor, which could show that the movement of the Orientals is out of the country and not into it, the engineering phase of the Japanese question appears to be over.

This may be only a respite, however, and not a settlement. Montana's Legislature is beginning to join the anti-Japanese uprising. The same chorus was drowned out farther West, the Mountain State, which never has paratively few Orientals, is now talking about segregation in the schools. In Washington, Oregon and even in Arizona there are notes of approval of California's action in the matter of anti-Japanese programme. Senator Mason Anthony of San Francisco has put introduction of resolutions in the Legislature at Sacramento which may carry no such gentle reproof as that given in his namesake's address to the Roman populace. He asks for a special election in which the people of California can vote Yes or No on the question of Japanese immigration. His resolution has been defeated, but he says he will bring it up again, and compel the Legislature to hear him for his pains. Nevertheless Mr. Roosevelt's pleasure with the Japanese legislator at Washington appears to share in Mr. Roosevelt's pleasure at the outcome, and also to have a little of the president's hope that this means the end of the agitation. The country will be glad if this optimistic opinion should turn out to be permanent.

But in order to prevent the recurrence of the trouble something remedy for the immediate occasion must do. The president sees that necessity. In his telegram of felicitation to Gov. Gillett he said "the way in which California has done what was right for the nation makes it more than ever obligatory on the nation in every way to safeguard the interests of California." Through modifications of existing treaties the United States and Japan must deal with this question of immigration in a way which will quiet the fears of the people of the Pacific Coast. Whether the prejudices of the Californians toward the Japanese be just or unjust, some consideration must be given to them by the rest of the country. It is altogether probable that the peril, real or imaginary, which California sees from the Japanese is decreasing, and not increasing. Fewer Japanese are in that state in 1908 than were there in 1907, and still fewer will be in 1909 and 1910. All the evidence which is available shows that the Japanese movement is tending to shut off emigration to the United States. Self-interest impels Japan to send the surplus population to Korea, to Manchuria and to Formosa instead of to America. She wants to have her people more by instead of several thousands miles away when the new struggle with Russia comes. Thus Tokio and Washington are working hand in hand. If Gov. Gillett and the conservative element of California's population, which element must be brought to the surface, are successful in keeping the sash on the demagogues and sand-lotters, President Roosevelt and Ambassador Takahira will probably be able to effect an adjustment which will remove all causes of irritation and restore quiet to the Pacific Coast. Here is an issue which Mr. Roosevelt and the country are anxious to settle in a satisfactory way so that it will not rise to trouble the incoming president.

Washington's Birthday.

Washington's birthday comes next week, and then the inspiration, in patriotic observance the American people are always ready and as interested as on the days that brief year ago.

After thorough tests the acoustics of the new Coliseum in St. Louis are pronounced satisfactory by a rare degree. The builders can count good luck among the other rewards of their enterprise.

Bryan and Bismarck.

In a lecture in St. Louis Mr. Bryan said he thought it more probable that a monkey is a degenerate than that he is a descendant of a monkey. Stand a problem on its head and Mr. Bryan thinks it is settled it.

Bryan and Bismarck.

One source of the lasting strength of Mr. Bryan has always been that he is a man who seems to be too second to be able to take defeat with a decisive and lasting impression. Prior to a party in need of a man who can take its punishment vicariously, and still come back for more, the Democratic party has seemed to turn to Bryan as the man for the place. In 1896 it has approached each of its quadrennial defeats in into years, and has emerged from each defeat for a man to take the brunt of it, it has seemed to turn to Bryan as the man who would have to run Bryan again. He doesn't mind it.

And Mr. Bryan never did mind it so long as he held the old Democratic party together. Bryan was wont to be called the Solid South in days when it was as safe to put Missouri as it was Mississippi in the Democratic column. And Mr. Bryan did not appear to lose sleep over the Democratic party losing its electoral vote to Roosevelt in 1904. He spoke bitterness only or the future, when he said that the Democratic party ties with the manner in which the Democratic party was made to be conducted in this state. Now, after Bryan has lanced that bilious, he was a great light. It seemed to be made to blip at the Jefferson Clubhouse in St. Louis Saturday night, and he said that was bitterly disappointed at the loss of Missouri by the Democratic last year, and he attributed that loss to the want of a proper support given to the Democratic ticket in this state. He said the Democratic party ties with the state.

Bryan gives a hard loser. Usually two falls out of three are enough for any man, but he is hardly upon make. He is not straight he should not complain if the test fall is harder than two out of three others. There is no denying that Mr. Bryan hit the ground harder the last time than over before. The great victory he was compelled to inform him the day after it was known to be lost, was the corner stone of the Democratic party. It was philpots worship, and that he would be the last to deny it. But it has depicted so many men of Democratic birth and antecedents with their party that Mr. Bryan, who was not born in the interest of anti-Democratic states, Missouri, Mr. Bryan is the man who for years should serve to make it at reliably Republican as it was made Democratic. Mr. Bryan is himself partly responsible for this condition. He was the man who in the depression of 1893 and 1894 made the Democrats who had convicted themselves and who were already condemned in the eyes of the people. He formed upon the dependent action of Democrats against the Cleveland administration. Cleveland. He had urged Democrats to elect men they have afterward defeated. He should have been able to see what was coming to him, and which he had insisted. So blame his party responsible is to dodge his own responsibility. It he can't be a good loser, let him quit losing.

Mr. Bryan thinks his party needs more newspaper grit and at the same time he thinks it needs less of it. Yesterday a newspaper that has been through three Bryan licksins, and wants more, has gone soft, but mighty little pumption.

When Lincoln was born no one could guess that a future president was in the log cabin and that, a hundred years later, another President would be on the same day in the birth state of the nation's tribute. The little Kentucky cabin will be one of the world's shrines.

The Liquor Problem in Missouri.

The Liquor Problem in Missouri, as seen by some who, however honest and earnest, are more swayed by feeling than by reason, is a problem of the most practical statesmanship to many of the people of the state. The attitude of this subject was considered by the two leading parties in the opening days of the last campaign, and the decision was that state-wide prohibition should not be included in the platforms. Both candidates for governor took ground in favor of local option. The Republicans, composed of members of these two parties, They in campaigns, and candidates, President Roosevelt and Ambassador Takahira will probably be able to effect an adjustment which will remove all causes of irritation and restore quiet to the Pacific Coast. Here is an issue which Mr. Roosevelt and the country are anxious to settle in a satisfactory way so that it will not rise to trouble the incoming president.

There are many good citizens, ripe in experience and in devotion to social advancement, leading sober, honorable, fruitful lives, and of an agreeable, sociable temperament, who believe that local option is altogether the best practical method to deal with the liquor problem. They believe it wise regulation that will encourage the sale of good whiskies and not disturb rights, personal and property, and yet put a check on intemperance. Local option is a form of prohibition of selling in districts that vote that they do not want it. It is backed by the sentiment of the prohibitionists, who, if it is permitted to open to every county in the state, and many counties have acted upon it, Home have made the state dry, and the other, and each is at liberty from time to time to vote on the question again. A county feels that it acts in accordance with the popular will when it votes to be dry, however in the state. Should fifty-eight undertake to overrule the fifty-ninth, the prohibitionists have but driving industries out of the state and making the public revenues less sufficient. Without in any manner believing how the rights of the minority should be protected, or how the property destroyed can be made good, the people of the state, and many counties have acted upon it. PINK ROSES AND SMILAX.

Many Beautiful Gowns Add Their Effect to the Brilliant Scene.

The second and last "Infernal" ball of the season was given last night at the St. Louis Club. About 225 members were present. The ballroom was elaborately decorated, being occupied with garlands of Bullrush, smilax, with great masses of Killarney roses, of interlacing, and the mantelpiece was adorned with Bullrush, Killarney roses and smilax. The supper room, too, had had pink roses interwoven with smilax, and the tables were decorated with Killarney roses, and small pink shades were used on the tables, which were set with pink carnations, and the menu cards were tied with pink ribbons. The supper was served in the upper dining room, the chaperons of the evening, and those who did not care to dance, stayed up there.

The guests were received by Mesdames Thomas Hunt Stevens, Robert Brookings, Jackson Boyle, Thomas Hunt Stevens, Jr., Sidney Wallace, George A. Fitzgerald, Thomas Hunt Stevens, Jr., Robert Brookings, and Frederick Bernard.

Some of the Costumes.

Mrs. Thomas Boland especially won admiration for her gown of pink satin, with pink tulle bodice, and pink roses in her hair. Mrs. Frederick Bernard, who was the prettiest, she thought, and a bonnet of lilac of pink roses, with a pink satin gown. Mrs. Jackson Boyle, who was also pretty, in a gown of white satin, with elaborate pearl trimming, and a pink rose in her hair. Mrs. Robert Brookings, who looked charming in a gown of Kilarney roses and pink tulle.

Miss Clarice Pierce Pulitzer was an exceptionally pretty girl in a pink satin gown, with a corsage bouquet of Killarney roses and a pink rose in her hair.

Mrs. Sidney Wallace looked very pretty in pink tulle, much embroidered in a pattern of roses, and a pink rose in her hair. Mrs. Wallace is president of the ladies of the ballet, a letter of whose conduct was read at the ball.

Mrs. Thomas Hunt Stevens was very pretty in a gown of pink satin, with pearl trimmed and chiffon. A corsage bouquet of pink roses and Killarney roses, and a pink rose in her hair. Mrs. Stevens is president of the ladies, elected in her position, and was the recipient of a bouquet of pink roses.

Mrs. Henry P. Tuttle was handsome in a gown of pink satin, with a corsage bouquet of Killarney roses accompanied by a pink rose.

Mrs. Tom Delaney looked very pretty in a gown of pink satin, with a corsage bouquet of Killarney roses and a pink rose in her hair.

Mrs. Frederick Bernard looked very pretty in a gown of pink satin, with a corsage bouquet of Killarney roses and a pink rose in her hair.

Krone Introduces Bill for Another Criminal Correction Division.

PROHIBITION ISSUE UP

House Holds Brief Session and the Senate Has Horse Play.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE GLOBE-DEMOCRAT.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., February 12.—The bill of interest to St. Louis was introduced in the Senate today by Senator Krone, both the author and the measure being identical with a division of the Court of Criminal Correction and providing for the election of two judges.

The bill provides the salary of the judge of the second division be made the same as that of the present judge, and that it have jurisdiction in similar cases.

The other measure outside the set creating the office of state dairy commissioner and fixed the standard and price of milk and butter manufactured and offered for sale the same as that laid down in the published reports of the Dairy Commissioner of Illinois, was introduced in an adjourn and the session adjourned. This bill, which was drafted by Thomas Ewing, Dairy Commissioner of Illinois, will be greatly resisted from the floor for the use of preservatives in milk or for the adulteration of butter with oleomargarine. Preservatives and colors are probably more dirty products than they are for use in Illinois, they are exempted from the provisions of the bill.

Senate Would Be Funny.

The State Senate, usually a reserved body, was in a boisterous mood when it began work at its session at half-seven pm. In the first place, Lieut. Gov. Gardner was absent, and the president pro tem. Senator Wallace, the senior member of the thirty-four senators were in their seats.

Still worse, senators seem to offer petitions from their constituents in good numbers, asking particularly for the submission of prohibition and for the county option bill, and the Senate, which is usually quiet, commonly speaks as one body in supplicatory mood.

Senator Wallace offered a petition from people of Ripley County in which the people of that county were praying for the submission of prohibition to the people. Senator Wallace, in presenting the Ripley, he asked to answer it. This moved Senator Ellis to offer a petition from Mo. W. Ellis and some other Senator Mr. Davis, who introduced morning offered a petition from Cape Girardeau County, asking for the submission of prohibition. Senator Cooper of Kansas City offered several petitions which he said were from constituents of Senator McDonald, who was absent from the city, and Senator Ellis offered a petition from Jackson County for the submission.

The Senate for state operations and prohibition issue in its favor. The Senate was prevented in the idea of the Senate from taking up the prohibition issue because it was referred to the Committee on Education. When adjourned the Senate was in the hands of Senator Ingham, who is chairman of the Committee on Constitutional Amendments.

Further May offered a bill to do away with the public investigation of crimes and shows and to allow the officers of the law to do their work. The bill is aimed at Detective Burns and the bill is said to be taken out of the hands of the State Senate.

Humphrey to Information Point.

Senator Humphrey, seeing in a price of Senator Ellis, the author of the bill, Senator Humphrey, who is a member of the Senate, offered a resolution to the effect that the Senate Committee on Education be instructed to inquire into the information contained in the bill.

Senator Ellis said that the bill was intended to be the Senate's idea of the information contained in the bill.

A resolution was offered in the Senate by Senator Ingham, which provides that the Legislature be asked to which the Legislature is now in session, the Senate Committee on Ways and Means, the Senate Committee of the Outlands Fund for the purpose of making a report on the proceeds, expenditures, and disbursements of the Legislature, has been given to but few members, and that the Senate be asked to be given the opportunity to be heard on the subject. Dr. E. H. Sears, upon his return from the Senate, said that the Senate Committee on Ways and Means, which was appointed, was awarded the pension bill, which was in the hands of the committee, and that it was in the hands of the boundaries of the fund.

Senator Ellis said that Senator Brubler is due to be present at the session will be received with metal badges giving the number.

Other Senate Bills.

Senator Ellis offered a bill to make a tax of 1 cent per ton on the production of coal, and a bill to make it a misdemeanor for any person to be in the state of Missouri who shall be found guilty of the crime of the state of Missouri to be in the state of Missouri, which is made a felony. Senator Ellis also offered a bill to make it a misdemeanor for any person to be in the state of Missouri, which is made a felony. Senator Ellis also offered a bill to make it a misdemeanor for any person to be in the state of Missouri, which is made a felony.

Under a resolution adopted to-day the Senate will have the information of thirty-two petitions in the House asking for the submission of the question of prohibition, and of the county option. In addition, there came a resolution, offered by Senator Ellis, from the people of Lee's Summit, asking for the submission of the question of prohibition. In Wade's county, he insisted to come in the form of a petition, and the Senate Committee on Education will be called on to consider the question of prohibition.

DELAY ON FREEHOLDERS

POLITICAL COMMITTEES POSTPONE SELECTION OF BIPARTISAN TICKET.

SCHOOL BOARD ALSO WAITS.

Instructions from Party Organizations Are Wanted—Physicians Ask Representation on Board.

Considerations of issues suggested for the Board of Freeholders to revise the city charter was postponed until 8 to-p. m. yesterday by the representatives of the Democratic and Republican city committees, who met in the Planters' Hotel yesterday afternoon. The matter was postponed in order to have all the recommendations from the Executive Board of the Democratic and Republican organizations before the committee.

The conference is to submit twenty-eight names to the Democratic and Republican committees for their consideration with the idea of selecting from the list the two Democrats and two Republicans to be voted for at the election to be held in the city next April. The committee will hold a preliminary conference with the Board of Education until a meeting of the committee to be held next Friday, when it will be decided by both committees before selecting a bipartisan ticket.

Among the suggestions in the Executive Board of the party conferences on the charter revision are the following:

Democratic Committee—Edward Ryan, Jr., Thomas Sullivan, E. Ellis and Joseph L. Garrison.

Republican Club—John Schreiber and Otto Kaiser.

BUSINESS MEN'S OELEGATES TO THE TARIFF CONVENTIONS

They Will Advocate Taft's Idea of an Advisory Commission.

President Kenneth Smith of the Business Men's League yesterday named the following gentlemen as delegates to the tariff convention held in Washington, February 16, 17 and 18: Ernst Kern, Ernst Kern Dry Goods Company; Robert Jamieson, Jamieson Shoe Company; Ernst Kern, Jr., Ernst Kern Dry Goods Company; Henry Blossomgeer, chairman of the committee, and Kenneth Smith, president of the league. The delegates will represent the Presidential Tariff, which will be following the Taft idea.

The Taft idea is understood to be opposed to the revision now underway in the tariff, and favors the creation of a tariff board to prepare a tariff bill to be based upon information secured by the board from every source, to be submitted to Congress for revision, and then to be revised by Congress, if it deems it necessary.

Mr. Blossomgeer will offer the following resolutions indorsing the local issue for the convention, which will be based on the Taft idea:

Clayton Court Refuses King Electric's Bond—Orders Investigation.

PROSECUTION GETS BUSY

Inquiry Already Before Grand Jury and to Be Resumed.

Prosecuting Attorney Robert L. Shackelford of St. Louis County stated yesterday that he will immediate the story and all secrets and gas companies in the county are compelled by one of Louis Shackelford's letters to the Prosecuting Attorney, the letter which he will probably deliver to a said that the present grand jury been asked to investigate the matter, and that he will probably deliver it to it instead of to the time the next grand jury convenes. Shackelford said that he had in his possession valuable information for the inquiry.

Mr. Shackelford, president of the King Electric Company, the Bellefontaine Electric Company, and the Suburban Electric Gas Company, stated last night that the companies with which he is connected are being "hounded" by the corporation counsel and the Public Service Commission, and that the Bellefontaine Electric Company, which is jointly affiliated with the Suburban Electric Light and Gas Company, is being "hounded" by the Public Service Commission. When asked if the King Electric Company is being "hounded" by the Public Service Commission, Shackelford said that the company had not been "hounded" yet, but that they are put at their super from their activities, and that they are not allowed to do anything.

"One of Prosecuting Attorney Shackelford's letters to the Prosecuting Attorney of St. Louis County, stated that the corporation counsel of St. Louis County, Shackelford's statement, and the Public Service Commission, are trying to make such bond copies as might be necessary in the inquiry.

"The King Electric was granted a franchise in Clayton on February 3, by the forty-five days, and the Bellefontaine Electric Company was granted a franchise in Clayton on February 3, by the forty-five days, and the Suburban Electric Gas Company was granted a franchise in Clayton on February 3, by the forty-five days, and the Public Service Commission, and the Public Service Commission, and the Public Service Commission
